BASKETBALL STINGERS TO HOST ALL-STARS

The Concordia University Stingers men's basketball team will be hosting the Canadian All-Star team on Saturday, January 25 at 8 p.m. in the Concordia Gymnasium on the Loyola Campus.

The All-Stars are just that. Their line-up includes three former All-Canadians; Grant Parobec and Enzo Spagnuolo of York and Gary McKeigan who played four seasons with the Stingers as well as 7'1" center Jim Zoet, a former member of the Canadian National Team and 6'5" Marty Gysbers who formerly played with the Dutch National team.

The All-Stars won 58 of 59 games played last season, including winning four of five tournaments. To date this year the Stars are 29-1 including wins over Acadia and St. Mary's in the Citadel Charity Classic Tournament which was held earlier in Halifax.

The game will provide a big test for Doug Daigneault's Stingers who, as of this writing, are 14-2 overall and 4-0 in the Q.U.A.A. and ranked third in the nation. The Stingers will counter the Stars attack with a few standouts of their own including 6'8" center Rob Latter and forwards Biagio Caresse, 6'5" and Craig Norman, 6'5". It should be the basketball event of the year in Montreal.

Tickets for the game are $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for children and Concordia students.
